Attached is the summary of the USACE brainstorming session on Thursday which I believe most of you knew about. [They agreed to pull together a brainstorming group to discuss the types of organizations and people and the types of issues that an independent study of the Gold King Mine release might address.] Although some of the recommendations might not fit perfectly with the tentative plans for the independent study that were discussed between EPA and DOI/BoR on Friday, depending on the scope and timing, this document really provides a great starting point for the study. Thanks so much to Karen for ensuring this happened and to Doug for heading it up – greatly appreciated. – Talk to you Monday - Dana
